

Wilson Tarbox

Six must-see gallery exhibitions during Paris+ par Art Basel

A Mira Schor retrospective, Chéri Samba's hyperrealist pop paintings, and Carol Bove's latest stainless-steel sculptures are among the highlights

October 18, 2022

Concurrent to Paris+ par Art Basel, many participating galleries are hosting special exhibitions in their Parisian spaces. Spread across town, here are six of the best gallery shows to see between visits to Paris+.

Installation view of Mira Schor, 'Orbs and eclipses', Marcelle Alix, Paris, 2022. Photo by Aurélien Mole. Courtesy of Marcelle Alix, Paris.

Installation view of Mira Schor, 'Orbs and eclipses', Marcelle Alix, Paris, 2022. Photo by Aurélien Mole. Courtesy of Marcelle Alix, Paris.

Installation view of Mira Schor, 'Orbs and eclipses', Marcelle Alix, Paris, 2022. Photo by Aurélien Mole. Courtesy of Marcelle Alix, Paris.

Mira Schor, 'Orbs and eclipses'

Marcelle Alix

Through October 27, 2022

Tucked away on a side street of the Butte de Belleville, Marcelle Alix is known for embodying the youthful underground rumblings of Paris's vibrant art scene. 'Orbs and eclipses', a solo show featuring works by Mira Schor from the last three years alongside a historical gouache from 1971, is no exception. Schor may not be a 'young' painter - for 50 years she has been exploring the same medium with the same objectives - and yet her work speaks to the persistent rebel spirit of the neighborhood that currently hosts her show. Her small formats, unstretched canvases, economy of materials, and bluntly feminist iconography produce a unique alchemy of power and modesty.