VENICE BIENNALE REVEALS ARTISTS FOR 2022 EDITION

Organizers of the Venice Biennale today announced the 213 artists and collectives whose work will appear in “The Milk of Dreams” the event’s fifty-ninth iteration, to take place April 23–November 27, 2022. The Biennale will elevate the work of women and gender-nonconforming artists and will “challenge the figure of men as the center of the universe,” according to the event’s director, New York–based curator Cecilia Alemani. Additionally, it will focus on the relationships between humans, various life forms, and technology.

The selected artists represent fifty-eight countries and comprise the Biennale’s most internationally diverse cohort to date, with five nations—Cameroon, Namibia, Nepal, Oman, and Uganda—being represented here for the first time. Of the 213 participating artists and collectives, 180 are making their inaugural Biennale appearances; eighty new commissions are planned. Hosting international pavilions for the first time are Kazakshstan, Kirghizistan, and Uzbekistan.

The main exhibition, which will be presented in the Arsenale and the Giardini, is divided into three parts: “The representation of bodies and their metamorphosis,” “The relationship between individuals and technologies,” and “The connection between bodies and earth.” Present in each section will be works responding to the 1950s children’s book by Surrealist artist Leonora Carrington from which the exhibition takes its title. The show will additionally feature five so-called time capsules, which will present unseen and historic works, borrowed from museums and collections, installed in tandem with the show’s contemporary works.

“What emerges is a historical narrative that is not built around systems of direct inheritance or conflict, but around forms of symbiosis, solidarity, and sisterhood,” noted Alemani.

The Fifty-Ninth Venice Biennale was originally slated to take place in 2021 but was pushed forward owing to the continuing Covid-19 crisis.
